Building Bridges:

Collaborations and Communities in Aging

46TH ANNUAL MEETING & CONFERENCE APRIL 3 - 6, 2025 BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA

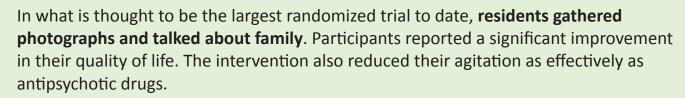

Don't let your memories fade™

Challenge your brain ...the more you stimulate and challenge your brain—and the earlier you begin that stimulation—the more of a buffer you'll create against the detrimental effects of aging.

Shirley S. Wang July 19, 2017

... study suggests that pRT stimulation may reduce dementia symptoms both during participation and as much as 24 to 36 hours later, when participants showed benefits from the residual effects of the photo-based reminiscence therapy session. This pilot study strongly supports and contributes to a medically valid, non-pharmacological approach to working with and treating patients with dementia.

Reminiscing and novel learning promotes neurogenesis and brain plasticity

Restore photos, documents and even mementos

Record memories and feelings to describe people, places and more

Stories combine images and recordings into movies automatically or fine-tune pRT assists family and professionals to engage with loved ones

Prompts assist caregivers to communicate with loved ones

hank you for attending the 46th Annual Meeting & Conference of the Southern Gerontological Society "Building Bridges: Collaboration and Communities in Aging". This year, we are excited to collaborate as a community partner with the University of Alabama at Birmingham. This historic partnership has allowed us to broaden our reach within our key geographic fourteen state membership locale and we are truly excited about this partnership. We will host a joint event on April 3, 2025, demonstrating our key mission statement of "providing the bridge between research and practice, translating and applying knowledge in the field of aging" through a community reception that will allow community partners to view an award-winning film, "Remember Me: Dementia in the African American Community." Following the film, there will be a panel discussion led by key experts in the field of clinical, academic and caregivers to address questions. The viewing will be open to our community partners and will serve as our community service project.

The conference will launch on the following morning, April 4th, with an introduction to the landscape of aging across Birmingham and the great State of Alabama. The same day, I will deliver the Presidential Luncheon keynote entitled "Make Some Noise: Empowering Family Caregivers Through the Journey." Gerontology is not a field for the weak at heart and I will address my 40+ year journey from clinician in acute care to military nursing, academia and finally landing in the field of gerontology. Hopefully, you will leave inspired and ready for the next two days of exciting poster and podium presentations.

Yes, the Dine Around Sessions have returned for Friday, April 4, 2025, to allow you to network with new and old friends. Birmingham is full of so many choices of Southern cuisine but also dotted with choices of excellent French. Italian and seafood with a Southern twist.

Our famous Silent Auction (supporting Student and Encore travel awards) opens at 11:30 AM on Friday morning, April 4th. If you didn't bring unique and quirky gifts for the auction, don't worry, SGS members always bring enough items for all of us to bid on. Bid early and bid often as the auction closes Saturday afternoon at 5:15 PM.

On Saturday, we kick off with our SGS Annual Meeting Breakfast where you will learn about all of the wonderful work happening withing SGS. Don't forget to bring your favorite fun or festive hats to Saturday's SGS Awards Ceremony Dinner, as we continue to feed our souls and celebrate those who have been recognized for one of SGS's many prestigious awards. We are happy to collaborate with Sigma Phi Omega as we welcome their awards as well!

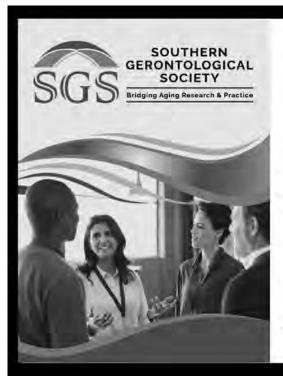

Sunday is a packed last and final day with multiple concurrent sessions during the day, ending with the inspirational words of our closing luncheon keynote speaker, Bob Blancato, as he shares the challenges and opportunities we face in our the aging network in his session, "Building Bridges Over Troubled Waters."

A special thank you to our conference program chairs – Dr. Cassandra Germaine and Dr. Elise Eifert. Your leadership and the work of your conference program committee have been instrumental in the development of this wonderful array of conference programs and activities. An additional thank you to our conference program committee and all of the abstract reviewers who helped us craft such an exciting variety of session options. Last, but certainly not least, thank you to our sponsors for their support of SGS.

Now prepare yourselves for 2026 as we head to Dallas, Texas. Mark your calendars for April 9 – 12, 2026.

Sincerely,

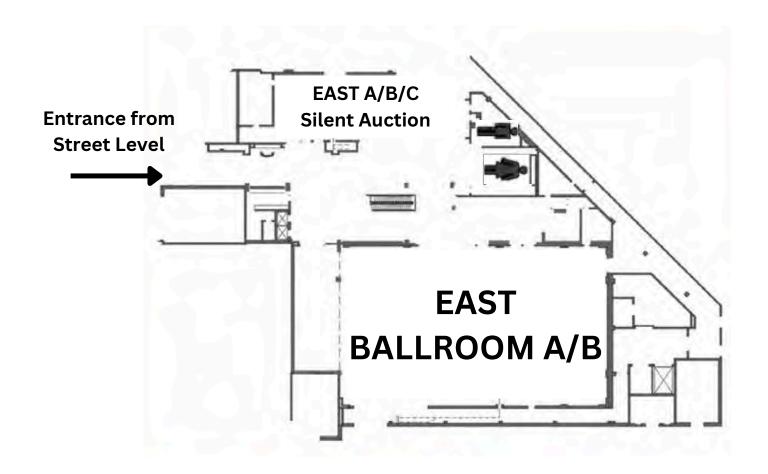

Ethlyn Gibson, DNP, MSN, RN-BC President, SGS (2024-2026)

GRITS - Gerontologists Rooted In The South -

This award seeks to maintain and stimulate interest in the history of SGS, and perpetuate the legacy of past and present members, including recognition of their achievements in the field of gerontology, their contributions to enhancing the lives of elders in the SGS region, and their service as role models for future generations interested in the advancement of knowledge and practice in the field of aging.

Gordon Streib Distinguished Academic Gerontologist Award - This award is named in memory of Gordon F. Streib and is meant to recognize SGS members, from all aspects of gerontology, who have shown excellence in leadership within and contribution to professional organizations and organizations which serve older people, a strong record of scholarly publications, and significant teaching influence with students and/or training of service providers or educators.

Victor W. Marshall Fellow in Applied Gerontology Award - This designation is named in honor of Victor W. Marshall and is meant to recognize SGS members, from all aspects of gerontology, who have made and continue to make substantive contributions to the field. This designation is an acknowledgement of outstanding and continuing achievement that bridges the domains of original and applied research, service to government, practice with older adults, gerontology education and advocacy within gerontology.

Applied Gerontologist Award - This award is given to SGS members in the fields of applied gerontology in the South. Award winners have a sustained record of leadership in the field of aging, are recognized in their fields, and generally, have positively impacted the quality of life of older persons through developing innovative programs such as applications of findings/approaches to research, education, management, or services delivery (with emphasis on application).

Best Practices Award - The Best Practices Award from the Southern Gerontological Society is intended to recognize programs, organizations, or aging services that engage in innovative and collaborative approaches intended to improve services and the quality of life for older adults. Awardees have demonstrated evidence of significant contribution to the field of aging and the development of gerontology in the South.

Rhoda Jennings Distinguished Older
Advocate Award - Several years ago, we named one of our special awards, the Older Advocate Award, for Rhoda Jennings, longtime SGS member and extraordinary advocate for older adults. Rhoda was the first recipient of the Older Advocate Award in 1987. This Award is given to recognize an older person whose retirement years have been devoted to community or legislative advocacy.

Media Award - SGS offers the Media Award to recognize an outstanding media contribution to further understanding of aging in the region and to the mission of SGS.

Student Paper Award - SGS encourages student submissions and offers cash awards to 1st, 2nd, and 3rd place for the best paper(s) authored principally by a student. Candidates for this award will be required to submit a full paper in advance of the Annual Conference. The recipient(s) of this award will present the paper at the Annual Conference.

Student Poster Award - In 2010, SGS awarded its first SGS Student Poster Award to encourage student poster submissions. SGS encourages student submissions and offers cash awards to 1st, 2nd, and 3rd place for the best poster presentation delivered principally by a student.

SGS Student Travel Scholarship Award -

The Southern Gerontological Society SGS Student Travel Scholarship Award was established in 2014 to support student members of SGS who have been accepted to present at the SGS annual meeting and can be used for SGS meeting related expenses. The funding for the award comes from the proceeds of the SGS Annual Meeting Silent Auction. This funding has allowed SGS the resources to provide a monetary amount to selected award recipients who are presenting research at our annual meeting.

Awards Committee - The Awards committee is responsible for all activities that pertain to soliciting awards nominations, reviewing nominations, selecting awardees, and organizing the presentation of awards.

Budget & Finance Committee - This committee reviews the annual budget and expenditures. The responsibilities of the Budget & Finance Committee consist of ensuring an accurate account of the Society's fiscal functions, presenting an Annual Operating Budget and a detailed Annual Report of the Society expenditures at the Annual Conference, annually reviewing the Society's fiscal records, preparing and submitting reports to the IRS and other agencies, reviewing financial policies of the Society, and recommending any needed changes.

Bylaws Committee- The Bylaws Committee primary responsibilities consist of reviewing the Bylaws each year and making recommendations, ensuring the delivery of Bylaw changes to the Society Membership at least 30 days prior to the Annual Conference, revising the Bylaws as necessary, and ensuring their distribution to the Board and Committee Chairs.

Council of Presidents - The Council of Presidents consist of all members of the Society that have completed the term of President. The responsibilities of the Council of Presidents consist of serving as counsel to the President and Board, organizing a Council of Presidents symposium for the annual conference, and assisting the Awards Committee in selecting GRIT nominees and awardees.

Development Committee - The responsibilities of the Development Committee consist of addressing the need of SGS for continued attention to fund raising, both for the annual meeting and for longer-term strategies; working cooperatively and collaboratively with all other committees on growth strategies for recruitment and retention of members, and other revenue-related activities; and generating through collaboration with the Executive Committee and as results from regular surveys of Society members, a vision and plans for continued development efforts including a Code of Ethics, priorities for the Society, and recommendations for projects of research, education, and advocacy.

Encore Committee - The Committee is responsible for generating interest in the Society among the older and retired population, assess the needs of older and retired people, and provide recommendations about how the Society can meet those needs.

Gerontological Education Committee -

The Committee will stimulate initiatives on gerontological education at all levels with a view to increasing gerontological literacy in our region. The Committee will seek to work collaboratively with existing agencies and organizations having concerns with gerontological education.

Membership Committee - The responsibilities of the Committee consist of developing a plan for regular communication, recruitment, and renewal for memberships. The Committee shall actively seek to increase membership from within each State, collaborate with the Encore and Student Committee Chairs to identify potential new members, and encourage use of the SGS exhibit at other professional meetings.

Nominating Committee - This Committee selects and obtains nominees for elected offices, informs candidates in advanced if the position that they are being nominated for is single slated or have multiple nominees, prepares and distributes a slate of nominees to the Society members at least 30 days prior to the Annual Meeting, ensures the ballots are counted by two individuals prior to the Annual Business Meeting and notifies all candidates of the election results prior to the Annual Business Meeting.

Public Policy and Advocacy Committee -

The Committee will generate interest in increased contribution to policy debates and advocacy for positive change initiatives targeted toward enhancing the lives of older adults in the south. The Committee would serve to link and stimulate initiatives occurring at both the state and national levels.

Program Committee - The Program Committee is involved in all facets of planning the Annual Meeting & Conference. These facets may include reviewing and scoring of collected abstracts, local arrangements, fundraising, and menu planning. Program Committee members may choose their activities in accordance with their availability and preferred activities.

Publications Committee - The Committee shall be responsible for the publication of the Journal of Applied Gerontology and the Southern Gerontologist and any other publications of the Society.

Student and Early Career Committee -

The responsibilities of the Committee are to generate interest in aging among the student population, establish a pathway of communication between students and professionals in the aging field, and asses needs of the students and provided recommendations about how the Society can assist in meeting those need.

EXHIBIT HALL PASSPORT CONTEST

SGS thanks each of our exhibitors for participating in this year's annual conference. Because of their support, we have been able to provide exceptional support for our attendees. Please help to show your support by visiting each booth and playing the exhibitor game!

ATTENDEES: Here's how the game is played!

- Your passport card is in your attendee bags. They are printed on BRIGHT GREEN paper.
- Attendees will need to visit at least 12
 exhibitors listed and get their passports
 "stamped" at every booth on their Passport
 Game card. Be sure that the representative places a sticker below their own company name.
- Once all stamps have been received (from each exhibitor), passports can be deposited into a drop-box located at the Conference Registration Desk before the end of the conference. Please be sure to include your email so you can be contacted about your prize.
- Please do not lose your game cards. But if you do, we have more at the Registration Desk.
- Only attendees registered to attend the Conference are eligible to participate and to win.

Thank you to the following individuals for donating $250+ since last year's Annual Meeting & Conference.

Dr. Lee Ann Ferguson

Dr. Graham Rowles

Supporting the Southern Gerontological Society (SGS) doesn't have to be complicated.

Recurring donations are a great way to support SGS because they provide reliable, continuous support for our mission to improve the quality of life for older adults through education, research and practice.

By setting up a recurring monthly gift to SGS, you can make an ongoing impact with minimal effort. Just choose an amount, and your contribution may be automatically processed monthly.

Here's how your monthly contribution can make a real difference:

$10/month – For the price of a streaming service or a couple cups of coffee, you can help fund programs like our student paper and poster awards.

$20/month – For the price of one lunch, you can help fund events like our educational webinars and fall advocacy forum.

$50/month – A nice dinner out could instead help fund the development of new resources such as our teaching repository.

$100/month – One night out could help fund innovative projects like these innovative projects that have received funding from SGS:

- A web-based ending violence across the lifespan (eval) bystander training
- A train-the-trainer program for Community Emergency Response Trainers (CERT) program trainers to better understand the specific disaster preparedness needs of older adult and vulnerable populations
- A Pre-K 2nd grade curriculum guide for cultivating positive views of aging
- An app to help caregivers make decisions during disasters
- A research project examining the role of activities related to cultural and geographic factors in predicting well-being in older rural African Americans

Prefer to make a one-time donation or a yearly donation? You can do that too! You're always in control—you can update or cancel your recurring gift at any time. It's giving made easy!

Unrestricted Gifts allow SGS to allocate funds where they're needed most. Whether it's for immediate needs or future projects, your unrestricted gift empowers us to act quickly and plan for the long term. By choosing to give regularly, you help SGS maintain its high standards of bridging aging research to practice. Your gift creates a lasting, meaningful impact.

Apply to one of the graduate degrees from the USC Leonard Davis School of Gerontology!

The USC Leonard Davis School of Gerontology is the oldest institution dedicated to aging research in the nation. We offer the most comprehensive selection of gerontology degree programs found anywhere and we are a pioneer in distance learning education. Our mission is to increase the quality of life for all older adults via research, service and education.

All of our Masters' programs are available in their entirety to distance learning students online and also to those who are able to attend classes on campus.

We also award $1.5 million to students in scholarships annually.

Both of our PhD programs are fully funded.

Innovative and Transformative Caregiver Support

As leaders in addressing caregiver needs, Riverside supports the Southern Gerontological Society.

At Riverside's Martha W. Goodson Center in Williamsburg, Virginia, we are called to examine all aspects of age-related diseases. Through the implementation of evidence-informed and evidence-based programs, we seek to improve the health of our community. The Center is pleased to collaborate with SGS members on research and other innovative projects to support older adults, persons with memory loss and their caregivers.

Applied Developmental Psychology PhD

OVERVIEW

The Applied Developmental Psychology PhD program is a research-training program where graduate students study developmental aspects of behavioral systems, family systems, and individual capabilities and competencies throughout development. A critical feature in our training program is that each student has a faculty mentor.

COURSE CURRICULUM

Through courses in developmental psychology, statistics, research design, and general psychology, you will develop a solid foundation in the history, methods, theory, and current research in developmental psychology. Six credit hours of PY 796, Practicum in the Teaching of Psychology, are required as the preparation and experience teaching is an important aspect of preparing graduate students for a professional career in Applied Developmental Psychology.

MAJOR PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS

Students enter the program with either a Bachelor's or Master's degree. If you do not hold a Master's degree, you will complete a thesis research project during the first or second years of the program. You will then complete the qualifying exam/admission in the form of a written literature review to candidacy for the Ph.D. degree. The final requirement is a completion of a doctoral dissertation — an independent, substantial scientific contribution to knowledge in a specific area of inquiry.

ADMISSIONS

Students are admitted only to begin in the fall semester, for full-time study, and for completion of the doctoral degree. Applications to our program and all related materials – including transcripts, letters of recommendation, and scores – must be submitted through the UAB Graduate School by December 15.

FINANCIAL SUPPORT

All successful applicants are guaranteed five years of support, which includes an annual stipend of $30,000 as well as full coverage of tuition, lab fees, and health insurance.

Dr. Annie Rhodes, Virginia Commonwealth University: Center on Aging

Matthew Jones, VA Dept of Aging and Rehab Services Nick Nyberg, Alabama Department of Senior Services MaryLea Boatwright Quinn, Georgia Department of Human Services, Division of Aging Services

ADVOCACY FOR OR BY OLDER ADULTS

The Older Americans Act (OAA) was initially passed in 1965 and is periodically reauthorized. The primary focus of the OAA is to provide services to adults over 60 who do not live in institutions. In 2024, the OAA was substantially updated with new requirements, including additional provisions for the prevention of elder abuse, coordination of work with tribal programs, emergency preparedness and response, and modernization of the nutrition program. The Administration for Community Living, State Units on Aging, and local Area Agencies on Aging, with affiliated partners, must comply with the new OAA requirements by October 2025. Join the SGS Public Policy and Advocacy Committee as a panel of aging network partners from across the south discuss the implementation of the reauthorized OAA. Panelists will discuss both the benefits and the barriers to the regulations. Learn more about the differences between states. This session will examine the shared challenges and solutions to implementing the OAA requirements.

CAREGIVING, CARE SUPPORT, AND CARE PARTNERSHIPS

This symposium seeks to a) present a conceptual model that foregrounds the utility of a trauma-informed approach to retention (Morgan & Royster), b) describe the life course context of nursing home staff and the relationship of that context to retention (Ahmad, Skipper, Burgess, Wright & Morgan), c) identify strategies to support high-functioning teams (Boakye & Morgan) and d) understand the role of direct care workers in the person-centered care and social integration of nursing home residents (Martey, Skipper, Kemp & Morgan). Dr. Christopher Kelly will serve as the discussant providing the policy implications for the findings.

Dementia & the Community Paper Session EAST D/E

This paper session will discuss community programming that increases knowledge of dementia and/or helps communities become better prepared to support people living with dementia. An Integrative, Community-Based Approach to Promote Brain Health and Wellness in Older Adults will provide an overview of an innovative community-based approach for offering evidence-based, holistic services to empower people of all ages to live a lifestyle that promotes healthier brain aging and optimizes brain health and wellness across the lifespan. Developing a Score to Measure Dementia-Friendliness in Faith Communities will describe the implementation and analysis of a measure of dementia friendliness in African American faith communities. Building a Dementia-Capable Alabama: Key Findings from a Statewide Assessment of Cognitive Health Needs will review findings from a statewide survey about service and information needs for Alabama communities related to dementia and cognitive health.

Supporting International Older Adults & Lessons Learned Abroad Paper Session EAST F/G

This paper session will explore the aging experience of older adults in other countries as well as how best to support older adults from other countries living in the US. Thriving Beyond Resettlement: Exploring Life Satisfaction of Resettled Bhutanese Older Adults in Ohio will delve into the complex factors shaping life satisfaction among resettled Bhutanese older adults in Ohio. Your English Is Your Health: Acculturation as Fundamental Cause of Health and Quality of Life among Older Asian Americans examines how socioeconomic status (SES) and acculturation factors—including familiarity with American culture, English proficiency, and length of U.S. residency affect self-rated overall health, mental health, and quality of life among older Asian Americans. Global Lessons for Local Action: Evaluating Healthcare Policy Effectiveness for Older Adults in Ghana will evaluate the effectiveness of Ghana's National Health Insurance (NHIS) in addressing healthcare needs and promoting equity for older adults. The Role of Family in Community-Based Long-Term Care 3.0 in Taiwan will examine the contribution and advantages of Taiwan's advanced care system, which prioritizes home and community-based services over institutional care.

EAST I/J

This paper session will review the relationship between caregivers and providers, opportunities for technology to help caregivers, and challenges experienced by a unique subset of caregivers. Caregiver-Provider Relationship Quality and Caregiving Outcomes among Family Caregivers of Persons Living with Dementia will examine whether the perceived quality of the relationship between family caregivers and providers is associated with caregiver depressive symptoms, anxiety and stress and whether this association varies by caregiver race/ethnicity and poverty status. Future Technology in Caregiving: Opportunities, Challenges, and Directions for Research will introduce a conceptual framework to guide the development of future technologies, emphasizing caregiver needs. Project GLEAN'D: Generating and Learning Evidence-Based Approaches for Navigating Dementia Among First-Generation Wealthy Black Caregivers will present key findings from interviews with 12 first-generation wealthy Black dementia caregivers, highlighting critical themes such as geographic relocation's impact on care, gendered caregiving roles, and challenges in accessing culturally competent services.

This paper session will explore how leisure and creative activities can affect an older adult's health & wellness. Creativity and Aging: Differences between Interventions for Healthy and Cognitively Impaired Older Adults will describe the benefits of creative interventions for different types of older adults with different types of capabilities. Creative Arts for Mental Health and Wellbeing: Evaluating an Arts on Prescription Program for Older Montagnard Refugees will discuss an 8-week arts-on-prescription (AoP) program aimed at enhancing the mental well-being of Montagnard older adults who experience unique challenges including war trauma, limited English proficiency, and social isolation. Creative Care for Respite: Building Skills and Confidence through an Arts Program will highlight a program that provides additional creative programming to respite directors, who come from a variety of backgrounds, and to build appropriate, person-directed programming for people living with dementia. Association Between Leisure and Art Activities and Depressive Symptoms Among Older Adults in Brazil will explore how participation in activities like going to the theater, dance, painting, and music concerts can impact the mental health of older adults.

President's Spotlight Session – How ALTER Leveraged Marketing Best Practices to Increase Recruitment & Retention Amongst African American Faith Communities

EAST N

Andy Suggs & Robert Yanks, Reckon Branding

DIVERSITY TOPICS IN AGING COMMUNITIES

Dementia-Friendly Faith Villages was launched in 2018 to address the lack of resources and awareness of dementia in African American and faith communities in the State of Georgia. The program struggled to meet recruiting, retention, and program goals in its inaugural year. In response to less-than-desirable progress, the principal investigator partnered with Reckon Branding to define a messaging focus for the program that better connected with each of its key audiences: Church leaders, caregivers, and partner programs within their space. Considering 71% of customers recommend a brand based on their emotional connection to it. Reckon knew they had to tell a story that extended beyond facts and figures. The program was provided with a new verbal and visual focus through internal ideation sessions, audits of competitive programs, and external interviews of Church leadership and caregivers of those with cognitive impairments. Armed with the more memorable name ALTER, a new logo, and more consumer-friendly marketing materials, the team was able to secure 83 partnerships over the next 4 years. This strategic pivot has helped ALTER exceed its partner goals by over 300% and empowered the program to develop consistently impactful marketing materials, which provided improved recruitment reach, increasing the participants from 7,500 to more than 100,000. Thanks to this success, ALTER has extended its reach from Georgia to many more African American communities of faith across 14 states. We will conduct a live brand and marketing exercise to help attendees identify their own marketing strategies.

Care Partner Satisfaction with Integrated Primary Care for People Living with DementiaEAST O

Laura Medders & Dr. Carolyn Clevenger, Emory University

CAREGIVING, CARE SUPPORT, AND CARE PARTNERSHIPS

Integrated Memory Care (IMC) is a comprehensive dementia care clinic that provides primary care, dementia care, and services for care partners in one practice. Co-production of care goals is a core value for the IMC's team; thus, the program has consistently sought patient and caregiver feedback about clinical experiences and what they value (or don't) with the IMC's unique model of care. The IMC program solicits patient and care partner engagement and feedback above and beyond the health system's typical channels. Specifically, the IMC utilizes a patient family advisory committee. Additionally, the IMC team has repeatedly surveyed patients and families as much has changed in medical care, the clinical program. Nearly half (49%) of 2024's respondents reported that they believed the IMC had helped them to avoid an emergency department visit compared to 47% of respondents in 2020. 85% of 2024 responders also indicated their life was easier because they were a patient of the IMC compared to 91% in 2020. The presentation will discuss the importance of seeking direct feedback from patients and families in a clinical practice as well as trends in feedback when families living with dementia receive comprehensive care.

President's Spotlight Session – Why We Sing: How Community Choirs Support Healthy and Creative Aging

EAST D/E

Joshua Vickery, Encore Creativity for Older Adults

AGE-RELATED HEALTH AND WELLNESS

Dr. Gene Cohen's groundbreaking Creative Aging study, The Impact of Professional Conducted Cultural Programs on the Physical Health, Mental Health, and Social Functioning of Older Adults-2-Year Results, published in 2007 inspired the founding of Encore Creativity for Older Adults. Study participants engaging in weekly choral rehearsals for two years experienced many improvements to their health and wellbeing including decrease in falls, decrease in medication, and an increase in participation in other community activities. Since that study, many others have been conducted to explore the role music (especially singing) plays in health and wellness as we age. This session will present an overview of this work and how Encore Creativity for Older Adults has developed a variety of programming to combat social isolation, work with people with memory loss due to Alzheimer's or related dementias and offer an opportunity for all older adults to participate in the arts.

EAST O

Dr. Ronit Elk & Reverand Moneka Thompson, University of Alabama at Birmingham

Pastor J.R. Finney, Reverand Geraldine Daniels & Lisa McNair, UAB- Community Advisory Board

DIVERSITY TOPICS IN AGING COMMUNITIES

Do you care about health equity for all older adults, but don't quite know how to fix the widespread disparities? Our session " African American Communities Speak to Healthcare Providers: Community Based Participatory Research (CBPR) in Action" will offer solutions!

You will hear about: an evidence-based approach that has been proven to reduce health disparities, but rarely used in healthcare; how a training program was created by a Southern African American community members to train health care providers in how to provide culturally concordant and racist free health care to older African Americans with serious illness; and the results of the training program on over 125 healthcare providers (Are they hearing what the African American community members are saying? Are they implementing the African American community's recommendations (or not?). Community Advisory Board members in a new CBPR-based study of African Americans in Birmingham will share: why they participate in a CBPR-based study; what it feels like when their input is used to develop training (and not that of expert academics); and why they want you to use this approach in your work (yes, CBPR works for program development and for research). We will engage the audience in discussing the pros and cons of CBPR, the barriers and facilitators to conducting CBPR-based studies/programs, and where you can learn about CBPR and receive mentoring when you use CBPR to develop your equity-based programs.

President's Spotlight Session – Intergenerational Programs in Higher EducationEAST D/E

Jessica Hsieh, University of Toronto Jessica DeAnna McCarty, University of South Alabama

GERONTOLOGICAL EDUCATION AND PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

This session will highlight two intergenerational programs. The University of Toronto (UofT) partnered with Christie Gardens, a retirement home, to launch an innovative experiential learning initiative: The Intergenerational Classroom. The Intergenerational Classroom explored aging from a viewpoint that considered the perspectives of both older and younger generations. Intergenerational approaches can help to create a brighter and more inclusive future for all generations, ensuring that individuals can grow up and grow older with dignity, rights, and opportunity. The second program will provide attendees valuable insights into how mentoring can positively impact attitudes toward aging and older adults. Intergenerational mentoring has been shown to enhance academic achievement and social development and foster a deeper understanding of mentorship and leadership.

The Important Role of the Professional Care Provider Paper Session

EAST F/G

This paper session will look at the important role of professional care providers and how they impact policies and quality of care for the older adults they serve. Impact of Institutional Special Needs Plan Model on Outcomes and Care Coordination: Perspectives from NPs and PCPs will examine the role of healthcare providers in advocating for enhanced care models for older adults within Louisiana's first Institutional Special Needs Plan (I-SNP), a Medicare managed care model designed for nursing home residents. A Grounded Theory Study of Person-Centered Care Practices in Adult Foster Care in Indiana will present findings resulting from a qualitative study on resident and care provider relationships and person-centered care practice in recreational activities in Adult Foster Care (AFC) contexts in Indiana. Building Bridges in Dementia Care: Collaborative Approaches to Enhancing Communication and Well-Being in Skilled Nursing Facilities will highlight Dementia Collaborative Coaching (DCC), an interdisciplinary approach that unites caregivers, Speech-Language Pathologists (SLPs), and other team members to improve communication, reduce behavioral symptoms, and enhance the quality of life for residents with dementia. Empowering Nursing Home Staff for Improved Dementia Care Outcomes: Program Innovations and Policy Recommendations will discuss successful programs (bridging wage gaps, subsidized training and support, and incentive programs) and highlight strategies for state and federal agencies to address staffing challenges in nursing homes.

EAST N

Dr. Christine Jensen, Riverside Martha W. Goodson Center

Dr. Jodi Teitelman, Virginia Center on Aging Dr. Ethlyn Gibson, Old Dominion University

Dr. Lauren Parker, Johns Hopkins University

CAREGIVING, CARE SUPPORT, AND CARE PARTNERSHIPS

This panel session is focused on "connecting the dots" for family caregivers in the new political environment. Caregivers are making an impact and are being impacted by legislation at the federal and state levels. One-third of registered voters ages 18 and older identify as caregivers in the past, while one-fifth are currently caregivers, and approximately one-half expect to be a caregiver in the future. Caregivers also have unique opportunities to engage in clinical studies. The first panelist will provide an update of the national landscape on caregiving programs and policies, specifically addressing the RAISE Report, Older Americans Act Reauthorization, and BOLD programs. Emphasis will be placed on reports and advocacy targeting Alzheimer's disease and dementia care. Next, the duo of panelists from Johns Hopkins University will address the importance of clinical studies and their important role and partnership with family caregivers. They will discuss specific opportunities for caregivers to enhance their quality of life and advocate for themselves and those they provide care for. The final panelist will continue to "connect the dots" by highlighting several national (e.g., National Alliance for Caregiving, Rosalynn Carter Institute for Caregivers) and regional programs (e.g., Virginia Dementia Care Coordination) that are dedicated to making an impact in this caregiving landscape. State programs in the SGS region will be highlighted including the respite voucher program and dementia care coordination. Collectively, this conversation, which attendees are encouraged to contribute to, bridges the landscape for families caring for individuals with dementia and promotes their well-being.

Health & Wellness Paper SessionEAST D/E

This paper session will explore different factors of health & wellness for older adults and caregivers. Factors Associated with Sleep Outcomes in Caregivers of People Living with Dementia will explore how improving caregivers' sleep can make their caregiving duties easier and more effective. The Impact of Rural and Creative Activities on Older Rural African Americans in Mississippi will examine the relationship between rural (i.e., farming, outdoors) activities and creative activities (baking, quilting, singing, etc.) and health and well-being in older African Americans in 3 counties in rural Mississippi. Biometric Comparisons of Physically Active Older Adults across a 7 year period will describe the differences of biometrics including blood glucose, HbA1c, and BMI, by age, between Black, White, and Hispanic physically active older adults. Boosting Brain Health: The Impact of Caloric Restriction and Exercise on Cognitive Function in Older Women will explore the cognitive effects of a 24-week lifestyle intervention combining caloric restriction and supervised exercise in postmenopausal women with overweight or obesity and functional limitations.

AGE-RELATED HEALTH AND WELLNESS

Alzheimer's disease and related dementia (ADRD) represent a growing public health crisis. There are an estimated 6.6 million individuals aged 65 and older living with ADRD nationwide and nearly 11 million unpaid family members providing care to these individuals. Dementia care providers have limited knowledge about and skills in navigating the complexities of providing person-centered care to people living with dementia. This can lead to decreased confidence in their caregiving abilities. caregiver burnout, and affect perceptions about individuals living with ADRD. Education is vital for improving care quality and caregiver well-being. In spring 2024, we launched the "Navigating Dementia" educational series. The program included five webinars and two in-person conferences, offering education on topics such as identifying cognitive decline, effective communication, and long-term services and support. Patient scenarios were integrated to provide practical learning opportunities and reinforce skills. Five-hundred forty unique participants attended the events, including 171 informal care providers, 85 Area Agencies on Aging employees, and 218 professionals who work with persons living with ADRD and their families. Preand post-event surveys were used to compare the influence of each event on changes in perceived confidence, skill, and/or attitude, as well as accuracy in responding to knowledge questions. Significant within group differences were found, indicating consistent improvements in all outcome measures. Only confidence was significantly different between groups. Overall, our educational series was successful in providing relevant and interactive learning through a hands-on approach and underscores the need to expand programs scope to address emerging issues in dementia care.

EAST K/L

Dr. Adrienne Lynn Cohen, Georgia Southern University

GERONTOLOGICAL EDUCATION AND PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Dr. Adrienne Cohen first began working with older adults in the early 1980's. She will share some of the wisdom she received from the people she served and the experiences she has had as a life-long gerontologist. Those of us that work in the field as nurses, social workers, case managers, etc., often we see ourselves as serving others but each day we serve, we are served by the patients, clients and consumers. Older adults are a great resource of wisdom, and we are given that wisdom as a gift that can enrich our lives. Dr. Cohen will discuss lessons from her wise clients, lessons based on the mistakes she has made along the way, and lessons from her professional experiences. As Dr. Cohen moves into her own later years, she will describe the ways in which her clients and career have influenced her life as an older adult moving toward retirement. There will also be opportunities for attendees to discuss and share their own lessons from the field.

Framing Aging Through Art: Using Humanities to Combat Ageism in Health Professions Education

EAST N

Jennifer de la Cruz & Dr. Leslie Taylor, Mercer University

GERONTOLOGICAL EDUCATION AND PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Ageism remains a significant barrier to delivering equitable and compassionate care for older adults. This session highlights an innovative student photography exhibition designed to address this challenge by engaging health professions graduate students in exploring aging through the 4Ms of age-friendly care: Mobility, Medications, Mentation, and What Matters. Attendees will learn how this project fostered interprofessional collaboration, empathy, and reflection among future healthcare providers, while showcasing the power of the humanities to challenge stereotypes and bridge gaps across generations and disciplines. Join us to explore selected student works, engage in reflective discussions, and discover practical strategies for using the humanities to promote age-friendly care and community connection.

GERONTOLOGICAL EDUCATION AND PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Join us for an engaging session on advancing Age-Friendly care through the innovative Advocate Role in the Geriatric Scholar Program (GSP). With a focus on bridging education and practice, this session highlights how interprofessional collaboration, guided by the IHI 4Ms framework, can empower healthcare teams to implement sustainable geriatric care improvements. Learn how the GSP's twoyear curriculum has equipped over 280 healthcare professionals across diverse disciplines with the skills to lead quality improvement initiatives, resulting in measurable system-wide impacts, including national recognition and accreditation. This session welcomes attendees from all backgrounds—academics, practitioners, students, older adults, and community partners—to explore actionable strategies for adopting and scaling the GSP model to enhance care for older adults. Discover how the Advocate Role fosters professional identity, promotes evidencebased practice, and inspires interprofessional teamwork to meet the growing demand for geriatric expertise. Whether you are a healthcare professional, educator, or community leader, this session offers practical insights for making your care practices more age-friendly.

DIVERSITY TOPICS IN AGING COMMUNITIES

The Atlanta Regional Commission (ARC) is the Area Agency on Aging for a 10-county region spanning urban, suburban, and rural areas. This region is ethnically diverse, holds a large LGBTQ+ population, and is projected to house approximately 3 million older adults in 2050. This workshop will examine approaches to understanding and addressing placebased health disparities that have been successfully employed by the ARC to facilitate equitable resource allocation for aging populations across the service region. Through a variety of strategic initiatives, including achieving national AARP Age-Friendly designation and the Live Beyond Expectations strategic plan, the ARC has creatively intervened in existing disparities across the region. Presenters will share research and community engagement findings and offer valuable resources for forming similar strategic efforts while emphasizing the historical importance of neighborhood-level change in the Atlanta region. Presenters will also discuss cost-effective interventions and quality monitoring strategies that have been shown to improve access to aging services for older adults experiencing geographic health inequalities. These interventions range from no-cost data visualizations, shifts in quality monitoring, and collaborative participation at the local and regional levels to funded projects like mini-grant programs, legislative advocacy, and targeted outreach materials. This workshop will explore the successes and challenges of many strategies to improving length and quality of life for diverse populations. Attendees will leave equipped to utilize freely available data to explore health disparities in their communities and form place-based interventions in response.

Alzheimer's disease and related dementias are among the most significant public health challenges of our time, impacting millions of individuals and their caregivers. As dementia care grows increasingly demanding, caregiver stress and burnout have emerged as critical concerns in communities and their memory care facilities. The Memory Disco Program introduces an innovative solution that combines silent disco technology with a structured musical engagement program to address these challenges. This session will explore how Memory Disco enhances resident engagement, reduces caregiver stress, and fosters meaningful connections. Attendees will learn about the program's methodology, outcomes from recent studies, and practical community implementation strategies. Participants will leave the session equipped with a deeper understanding of how musical interventions like Memory Disco can transform community-based dementia care environment. They will gain practical tools and actionable insights for implementing this program to improve caregiver well-being, enhance resident interactions, and foster a culture of connection and joy. Participants will walk away with an actionable approach to meet their community's needs of decreasing staff turnover, improving life enrichment opportunities, and cultivating a positive workplace environment despite dementia-related challenges.

Scholars With A.G. Rhodes: The SWAGR Program – An Example of a University-Provider Education and Career Pipeline Partnership

EAST N

GERONTOLOGICAL EDUCATION AND PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Gerontology programs often seek to enter into education-practice partnerships to support students to gain hands-on knowledge and experience that prepares them for careers serving older adults. This collaboration, known as "Scholars With A.G. Rhodes at GSU" (SWAGR at GSU), offers master's students the opportunity to gain valuable hands-on experience in long-term care settings while completing their graduate training in gerontology. By combining education with real-world practice, the program aims to strengthen the elder care workforce and enrich the students' professional development. The SWAGR program extends the usual partnerships that foreground service learning or internships while seeking to create educational/career pipelines for international students with foreign nursing education. The program not only helps fill the growing need for skilled elder care professionals but also provides a much -needed pathway particularly for international students to establish nursing careers in nursing homes in the United States. This workshop will a) describe the pilot program, b) share the results of the initial needs assessment conducted with staff from the three A.G. Rhodes locations, c) share insights and challenges from current students, faculty and A.G. Rhodes staff members involved in the project, and will close with an interactive discussion about next steps and model development.

GERONTOLOGICAL EDUCATION AND PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Intergenerational gardening programs serve as dynamic spaces where older adults and younger generations come together to cultivate not only plants but also meaningful relationships, lifelong learning, and holistic well-being. This hands-on session will showcase the impact of a thriving gardening initiative at Gilfield Park, an affordable housing community for those fifty-five and over, made possible through collaborations with local intergenerational groups and interdisciplinary teams. Over the past year, fifteen therapeutic horticulture sessions engaged residents in gardening, nutrition, and wellness activities designed to enhance mental, physical, and social health. Attendees will gain insight into how community-driven programming can be tailored to meet the needs of those often overlooked, while fostering sustainable food production, environmental stewardship, and healthier living. Join us to explore the power of gardening as a bridge between generations, a catalyst for social connection, and a transformative tool for improving quality of life in aging communities. Whether you're a researcher, practitioner, or community partner, this session will equip you with practical strategies for designing impactful, intergenerational gardening programs.

President's Spotlight Session – AgeReady: An Interactive Web-based Assessment Tool Designed to Help Older Adults and Their Family Members Prepare for the Challenges of Aging

EAST D/E

Dr. Michael Parker & Ethan Asters, University of Alabama

CAREGIVING, CARE SUPPORT, AND CARE PARTNERSHIPS

Getting older doesn't come with a guidebook, and navigating later life can feel overwhelming for both older adults and their families. That's where AgeReady comes in. It's a practical and user-friendly tool designed to help older adults and their loved ones tackle the challenges of aging with confidence. From essential tasks like creating a will or managing medications to meaningful ones like recording videos for grandchildren or deciding on a companion pet, AgeReady offers thoughtful guidance and resources to make the process easier. It's especially helpful for families dealing with dementia-related concerns, providing a proactive way to plan for the future. AgeReady users access a simple, easy-to-use website featuring tasks organized into four areas: medical, legal/financial, family/social, and emotional/spiritual. Each task comes with a quick explanation of why it's important and links to trusted resources to help get it done. The tool also includes secure document storage for added convenience and peace of mind. In this workshop, we'll show you how AgeReady works, share the story of its development, and explore ways it can support professionals, caregivers, and families in planning for later life.

Post-Silver Tsunami: Pre-licensure Nursing Students' Caring for the Older Adult Immersion Course

EAST F/G

Dr. Kimberly Delgado, East Carolina University College of Nursing

GERONTOLOGICAL EDUCATION AND PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

In 2024, the United States experienced the 'Silver Tsunami', the year in which a record number of individuals turned sixty-five. The older adult (65+) population is increasing exponentially and longterm care organizations, including nursing homes (NHs), will serve significantly more individuals in the coming years. The COVID-19 pandemic exposed and exacerbated NH staffing recruitment and retention challenges. Insufficient numbers of adequately trained staff result in suboptimal care. With the current nursing crisis, and a lack of transition-to-practice programs, NHs will not be able to meet the needs of the projected population without implementing innovative approaches. To increase pre-licensure nursing student NH exposure, the Carolina Geriatric Workforce Enhancement Program (GWEP) team have created a grant-funded independent study course. The goal of this immersion course is to increase the number of new graduate nurses who choose first employment in NHs and equip them with the tools needed to sustain employment. This session will include an overview of the NH structure, insight into RN recruitment and retention issues, and the role/responsibilities of the RN. Attendees will be provided with an overview of the immersion course components, anticipated outcomes, and next steps.

ADVOCACY FOR OR BY OLDER ADULTS

Ageism, the stereotypes, prejudice and discrimination towards others or ourselves based on age, affects us all and is prevalent in health care, higher education and other settings. In this session, we will discuss perspectives on ageism in higher education and health care and describe experiences with interventions to identify and combat ageism. Glynis Boyd Hughes will share her experiences in combating ageism in higher education as an adult learner and the impact of founding an undergraduate student organization for adult learners at VCU, Retro Rams, that contributed to institutional change and the development of VCU's Office of Adult Learners and Non-Traditional Students. Bethanie Constant will discuss her experiences in leadership in the not-for-profit senior living sector and using the VCU Organizational Assessment component of the Age and Ability Toolkit for Senior Living to raise awareness, celebrate strengths and develop recommendations for improvement to combat ageism at a senior living community. Patricia Slattum will share perspectives on ageism in health care from decades of practice as a pharmacist and discuss how training the health care workforce and reliably implementing high quality Age-Friendly 4Ms care can improve outcomes for older adults and mitigate ageism in health care settings. Advocacy, assessment leading to quality improvement, and implementation of evidence-based frameworks and training are methods that can lead to more age-inclusive health care, higher education and beyond. Our moderators will lead us in an engaging discussion with attendees on lessons learned and further opportunities to address ageism.

President's Spotlight Session – Developing Your Disaster Preparedness Blueprint

EAST O

Dr. Lee Ann Ferguson, UMBC Erickson School of Aging Studies

Dr. Lindsay Peterson, University of South Florida

AGE-RELATED HEALTH AND WELLNESS

One of the many reasons people either do not prepare for disasters, or do not fully prepare, is the anxiety they associate with being involved in a disaster. This same anxiety is often associated with other critical but difficult decision-making, such as advance care planning. Despite knowing it is essential to plan for challenging and complex events, the process can be overwhelming, and it can be difficult to even know where to start. In this workshop, attendees will begin to develop a blueprint for their own disaster planning as moderators walk them through the process of all-hazards preparedness, disaster mitigation, and response. Attendees will be coached to consider their own environments, identify potential hazards, mitigate avoidable challenges, and begin to build a sense of what they would do (before and after) in the event of a disaster. Further, they will be given tools to help others develop their own disaster plans. We will work from a scalable disaster preparation model, from a kitchen fire to a more widespread incident. Speakers will discuss available resources, including pilot test results of an app in development by Lindsay Peterson, PhD, to help caregivers develop disaster plans for themselves and those in their care. Lee Ann Ferguson, PhD, will discuss elements of her most recent webinar series on "Emergency Preparedness Essentials: Safety, Care, and Recovery". This webinar series was held in October 2023 in a four-part series in partnership between the UMBC Erickson School of Aging Studies, Virginia Commonwealth University, and the Health Quality Innovation Network (HQIN). It reached nearly 200 attendees who represented a variety of professionals from the senior housing industry.

President's Spotlight Session – Change is Hard: Top 10 Lessons from Implementing a Safe Mobility Program

EAST N

Dr. David James, University of Alabama at Birmingham

GERONTOLOGICAL EDUCATION AND PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Discover actionable insights from implementing a comprehensive safe mobility program at a large academic medical center. This session will explore the intersection of mobility and the IHI 4Ms framework, focusing on strategies to reduce hospital-acquired disability and enhance Age-Friendly care. Presenters will share key lessons learned, including the roles of nursing, acute therapy, and Mobility Techs in maintaining and restoring patient function. Using Lewin's Change Theory and the IHI Model for Improvement, attendees will engage in an interactive discussion on overcoming barriers, navigating challenges, and fostering collaboration in building a culture of safe mobility. This session offers practical tools and lessons applicable across clinical and community settings, welcoming a diverse audience of healthcare professionals, educators, students, and community partners committed to advancing Age-Friendly initiatives.

President's Spotlight Session – Project RECLAIM: Reduce Clutter and Increase Meaning in Your Life!

EAST O

Dr. Mary Dozier, Mississippi State University

AGE-RELATED HEALTH AND WELLNESS

This workshop will provide an overview of Project RECLAIM (Reduce Clutter and Increase Meaning in your life!), a behavioral intervention for late life hoarding disorder. The presentation is designed for anyone who is interested in learning evidencebased techniques to help older adults de-clutter to help them age in place. We will provide an overview of how motivational interviewing can be used for late life hoarding disorder and how to implement these techniques across a variety of settings, as well as review the theoretical background and evidence on the efficacy of the intervention. Using a simple behavioral intervention facilitated through motivational interviewing, we have found that Project RECLAIM helps older adults to reclaim their homes and to reclaim their lives.

LGBTQ Older Adults

EAST D/E

Dr. Jeffrey Lentz, Emory University

DIVERSITY TOPICS IN AGING COMMUNITIES

The lesbian, gay, bisexual, trans, and questioning, plus (LGBTQ+) older adult population continues to age and is at risk for utilizing long-term care services, among other care settings and services. This poses an issue for long-term care service administrators and staff as they are not prepared to provide inclusive quality care for LGBTQ+ older adults. In order to give quality inclusive care to LGBTQ+ adults and build bridges for community collaboration, long-term care administrators and staff, as well as other care partners, need to have a basic understanding of terms, history, trauma, and intolerance of LGBTQ+ people, and their experiences throughout their life course. In addition, learn how to make their communities safe, welcoming, and inclusive for LGBTQ+ older adults. This workshop will give participants an overview and best practices for working with older LGBTQ+ adults in personal care homes, assisted living communities, nursing homes, and other care settings. Topics include terms, historical trauma, discrimination, prejudice, dementia, statistics, and resources to make communities safe, welcoming, and inclusive.

Social Workers and the Retiring Older Adult: Applying the Resource-Based Dynamic Model to Enhance Outcomes

EAST F/G

Dr. Kathryn Roosevelt, University of Kentucky

AGE-RELATED HEALTH AND WELLNESS

This presentation explores a theoretical framework for addressing psychological outcomes in retirement through research. Designed for practitioners, educators and students, this session highlights social work practice recommendations from a conceptual space. Attendees will learn about retirement planning, retirement resources and ways to improve engagement and/or services for the aging population. Through interactive discussion and evidence-based insights, attendees will develop an understanding surrounding needs and develop some practical tools to enhance their work. Implications for practice, policy, and education are discussed, emphasizing how these efforts shape the future of gerontological social work.

Compassionate Conversations for Caregivers EAST I/J

Gwenyth Johnson, Vivid HealthStyle/Center for Compassionate Aging

CAREGIVING, CARE SUPPORT, AND CARE PARTNERSHIPS

Compassion may seem like second nature but for many reasons we have moved from our hearts to our head. We listen to others wondering what we should say next, what do they want, what do I want, and so on, not really hearing what the speaker has to say. So much of the communication relationship is developed in between the words. Becoming a compassionate listener and communicator means hearing what the speaker's heart is saying and understanding their experience. Learning the skills of compassion and listening can help to de-stress the communication relationship.

Addressing Physical Inactivity in Older Adults: Socioecological Barriers and Solutions Across Rural Communities (Student Paper)

Lydia Hoskins & Dr. Jodi Southerland, East Tennessee State University

DIVERSITY TOPICS IN AGING COMMUNITIES

This session is designed for public health practitioners, community leaders, and policymakers, offering actionable strategies to address common urban and rural disparities in physical activity among older adults. It emphasizes the importance of leveraging community strengths to create impactful, sustainable interventions. Attendees will gain insights into fostering diverse partnerships and implementing evidence-based solutions to increase physical activity opportunities for older adults in any community. The session highlights interconnected barriers to physical activity—spanning individual, organizational, and community levels—and the need for holistic, placebased interventions tailored to older adults. By involving the target population (i.e., older adults) in the planning process, programs can enhance selfefficacy, relevance, and accessibility, particularly in underserved and rural areas. This discussion will empower attendees to create targeted, inclusive strategies that promote active lifestyles and improve the well-being of older populations.

Dementia and Particle Pollution: Implications for Older Adults

Dr. Andrea Jennings, Northeast Ohio VA Healthcare System

AGE-RELATED HEALTH AND WELLNESS

Millions of people are living with dementia and this number is expected to increase in the future. The purpose of this presentation is to examine if these cases of dementia are thought to be linked to modifiable risk factors such as exposure to air pollution, specifically to fine particulate matter (PM2.5), which have been reported to induce inflammation in the brain and may be linked to the development and progression of dementia. Air pollutants are thought to have the capability of entering the bloodstream and moving into the brain, causing neural inflammation and may contribute to the onset of dementia. Conceptually when examining the link between air pollutants and dementia, models in the literature typically are examining sources (i.e., PM 2.5, PM 10, and PM1), vulnerable populations (i.e., those with chronic illnesses, older adults, children, people of color, smokers, those living in poverty, and Veterans), exposure routes (i.e., emissions from various sources such as factories, vehicles, wood burning devices, fires etc.), dose of the particles (how much exposure), impact of the human body (i.e., heart and brain). Results from research studies in this arena of particle pollution and dementia can illustrate the importance of having environmental health policies in place. An increased understanding between the link of dementia and particle pollution is needed and can aid in the mitigation efforts in addressing this issue.

Exploring the Issue of Social Isolation in Northeast Tennessee (Student Paper)

Aimee Rowe, East Tennessee State University

AGE-RELATED HEALTH AND WELLNESS

Social isolation is a real problem with very real health implications. This issue continues to grow each year. To fully understand the issue of social isolation in older adults, it is important to examine it from all points of view closely. This study investigates the issue of social isolation from the perspective of those individuals who see first-hand the experiences of older adults. All individuals interviewed for the study interact with older adults regularly. Study participants include a researcher, community leader, organizational director, and a nursing assistant. Their observations and experiences shed light on the daily experiences of those older adults with limited social interaction. Interviews explored contributing factors to isolation, as well as suggesting potential solutions to the issue.

Perceptions of Physical Activity Among Women Aged 45-64 with Colorectal Cancer: A Systematic Review (Student Paper)

Jacob Callahan, Elle O'Donnell & Dr. TimMarie Chloe' Williams, University of the Incarnate Word School of Osteopathic Medicine

AGE-RELATED HEALTH AND WELLNESS

The perception of physical activity in women with colorectal cancer is vague. The aim of this systematic review was to examine the perception of physical activity in women with colorectal cancer. A systematic review was developed in accordance with PRISMA 2020. Relevant databases of PubMed and CINAHL were analyzed for studies published between 2004-2024. Articles were included if they: (1) included female patients who were between 45 and 65 years; (2) were written in English; and (3) were full-text available. Three authors independently screened titles, abstracts and full papers. A total of 79 articles and eight were selected in this systematic review. This review highlights the importance of physical activity for women aged 45-65 diagnosed with colorectal cancer. However, there is a need for more comprehensive, long-term studies in this area.

Sports-Related Head Injury Associated with Alzheimer's Disease: A Systematic Review (Student Paper)

Hannah Brady, Anthony Castro & Dr. TimMarie Chloe' Williams, University of the Incarnate Word School of Osteopathic Medicine

AGE-RELATED HEALTH AND WELLNESS

The effectiveness of treatments on Alzheimer's disease on athletes who have sports-related head injuries are vague. The aim of this systematic review was to examine the impact of cognitive behavioral therapy on Alzheimer's disease among athletes with sports-related head injuries. A systematic review was developed in accordance with PRISMA 2020. Relevant databases of PubMed and Cochrane were analyzed for studies published between 2013-2024. Articles were included if they included: (1) Alzheimer's disease; (2) athletes with sports-related head injuries; (3) cognitive behavioral therapy; (4) randomized control trials; (5) cohort studies; (6) longitudinal studies; (7) cross-sectional studies; (8) observational studies; (9) case reports; and (10) systematic reviews. Three authors independently screened titles, abstracts and full papers. A total of 249 articles and 31 were selected in this systematic review. Studies were from North America (N = 7), followed by Europe (N = 3), Australia (N = 1) and many from global multi-region sources (N = 20) and included cross-sectional (N = 5), observational (N = 2), longitudinal (N = 3), cohort (N = 1), randomized control-trials (N = 2), double-blind randomized control trials (N = 1), case reports (N = 1), and systematic reviews (N = 16). Of the 31 articles, we found the overall quality of evidence was moderate, with 2 articles being of low quality due to being observational studies. This review was anticipated to yield clinically meaningful insight on the impact of cognitive behavioral therapy on Alzheimer's disease among athletes with sports-related head injuries.

Traumatic Brain Injury (TBI) is a major public health issue, affecting millions of adults globally and increasing the risk for neurodegenerative diseases, especially Alzheimer's disease. The effectiveness of aerobic exercise on Alzheimer's disease is obscure. The aim of this systematic review was to examine the impact of aerobic exercise on Alzheimer's disease in adults with traumatic brain injury. A systematic review was developed in accordance with PRISMA 2020. Relevant databases of PubMed and Web of Science were analyzed for studies published between 2000-2024. Articles were included if they: (1) were in English, (2) involved adults (≥18 years) with traumatic brain injury; and (3) compared aerobic exercise to no exercise. Four authors independently screened titles, abstracts and full papers. The methodological quality of the included studies was assessed using the Cochrane Risk of Bias tool. A total of 97 articles and 13 were selected in this systematic review. Among the 13 studies, there were a total of 7,599 participants. The studies included 2 randomized controlled trials, 5 observational studies, 4 narrative reviews, and 2 systematic reviews. Participants, aged 18-75, were from various countries and included both males and females. This review was anticipated to yield clinically meaningful insight on the benefits of aerobic exercise on Alzheimer's disease among adults with traumatic brain injury.

GERONTOLOGICAL EDUCATION AND PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Demographers predict that by 2030 the population of individuals aged 65 and over in the United States may be as high as 72 million people, representing 20% of the entire population. Given these realities, most health professionals will work with older adult patients, regardless of their specialty. Yet, studies reveal a shortage of health professionals (doctors) educated and trained to care for aging Americans. As such, there is a need to infuse agefriendly education producing high quality care, improved clinical outcomes, and elevated provider satisfaction in diverse social and environmental conditions. Join us as we describe the tenets of age-friendly care and identify possible strategies and outcomes of team-based models of pre-clinical and clinical education, highlighting results from the evaluation of programs that utilize age-friendly programs focusing on the four "M's" – what matters, mobility, medication, and mentation. Evaluation results will demonstrate the need for age-friendly programs that incorporate an awareness of the considerations required for the provision of care in this age group. We will address barriers to the implementation of training and the measurement of training outcomes.
